NEWS RELEASE

DPMS Unveils the .30 Rem AR Upper Assembly The Stopping Power of a Big Game Cartridge From Your .223 Lower Assembly

Big game hunters and varminters alike will appreciate DPMS' recent addition to their extensive line of upper receiver assemblies, the DPMS .30 Rem AR Upper Assembly. The beauty, and economic value, of this new upper assembly lies in its chambering, the revolutionary .30 Rem AR cartridge from Remington. The .30 Rem AR, a cartridge with similar ballistics to that of the .308 Win, provides the stopping power of a big game cartridge yet is capable of being fired from any standard .223 lower receiver assembly, all due to the innovative bolt design which includes a modified extractor and ejector and a unique upper receiver.

The extruded, 7129 aluminum A3 Picatinny Rail flattop upper receiver features unique machining to allow for the oversized bolt face/barrel extension, and features the hard coat anodizing and black Teflon coating customary on all DPMS upper receivers. A 20" fluted and target crowned 416 stainless steel heavy barrel, aluminum free-float tube with factory installed sling swivel and phosphated steel bolt carrier complete the new upper assembly from DPMS. One (1) independently designed magazine, exclusive to the .30 Rem AR cartridge, will be included with the upper assembly. Hunters everywhere can now go big game hunting in the morning and varmint hunting in the afternoon while only having to invest in the DPMS .30 Rem AR Upper Assembly for their previously existing .223 lower assembly!

The DPMS .30 Rem AR Upper Assembly (AR30-BA-20) is slated to be released in the second half of 2009, with a price that is yet to be determined.
